MUSSOLINI GIVEN BIG ITALIAN VOTE

More Than 10,000,000 Register Approval of His Fascist Regime in Sunday's Vote.

ONLY 15,000 OPPOSE HIS SELECTED GROUP

Rome, March 26 (AP) — More than 10,000,000 voters registered their approval of Premier Mussolini and his fascist regime in Sunday's elections.

With all returns in, only 15,265 contrary votes were recorded in the balloting on the 400 government-selected candidates — headed by Il Duce — for the 29th chamber of deputies.

Of 10,433,536 electors registered, 10,041,997 voted, a percentage of 96.25.

Favorable votes totalled 10,025,513 and 1,219 were disqualified. The percentage of favorable votes of the total number cast was 99.8.

There was no opposition list of candidates, but electors had the right to accept or reject the official selections.

Many provinces showed no contrary votes — such as Avellino which cast 112,656 votes; Brindisi, 59,692, and Salerno with 127,304.

The province of Forli, Mussolini's old bailiwick, cast only three contrary votes in 105,585.

Official spokesmen described the balloting as a plebiscite to show the r[illegible]ation's faith in Mussolini and [illegible] ratify his policy in foreign as [illegible]ll as domestic affairs.

The elec[illegible] passed without incident. N[illegible]ght was recorded anywhe[illegible] in the kingdom.

HUGE TELESCOPE IS BEING MADE FOR SCIENTISTS

Largest Lens Ever Made Is Poured Into Mold and Is Being Cooled.

TWENTY TONS OF GLASS NECESSARY

Telescopic Eye Is Designed to Reach Depths Never Found Before.

By WALTER BROWN

Corning, N. Y., March 26 (AP) — A huge telescopic eye, the largest ever made and expected to reveal vast, unexplored depths of the universe, cooled slowly today in its honeycombed mold in preparation for the final stages of a costly astronomical experiment.

Twenty tons of molten blue-white glass were poured yesterday into the brick mold at the Corning Glass Works. When finally fashioned by annealing and grinding into a titanic disk, 200 inches in diameter and 26 inches deep, it will be fitted into a telescope in California.

The disc will be twice as large as any other. The mirror, when finished four years hence, will reach depths of the void more than one billion light years distant. The most powerful astronomical eye now in use, at Mount Wilson, California, throws back images only 300,000,000 light years distant.

Although officials said they fully expected the eye poured yesterday will be a success, they disclosed that several hemispherical "cores" attached to the bottom of the mold disintegrated under the terrific heat.

They indicated this probable would be of little moment, but said that a precaution planned some time ago will be followed. A new mold will be prepared. If, on examination two or three months hence, imperfections are discovered in the glass, a new disc can then be poured forthwith, losing as little time as possible. Every one emphasized that making an eye of such size is a brand new experience and that only time can tell the exact outcome.

The cores are intended to make crevices on the bottom of the disc to assist in holding it in place in the telescope and also to reduce the weight. If the mishap does not produce imperfections, the glass works will make the required crevices by drilling after the mirror is annealed.

One workman was injured slightly yesterday when he slipped and struck his head on a huge ladle.

Within the next 24 hours the mirror will be transferred from its igloo-like house to the annealing tank. There it will cool gradually during the next ten months. It then will be shipped to the Carnegie Institute of Technology in California to be ground to produce a concave reflecting surface.

Finally there will be the task

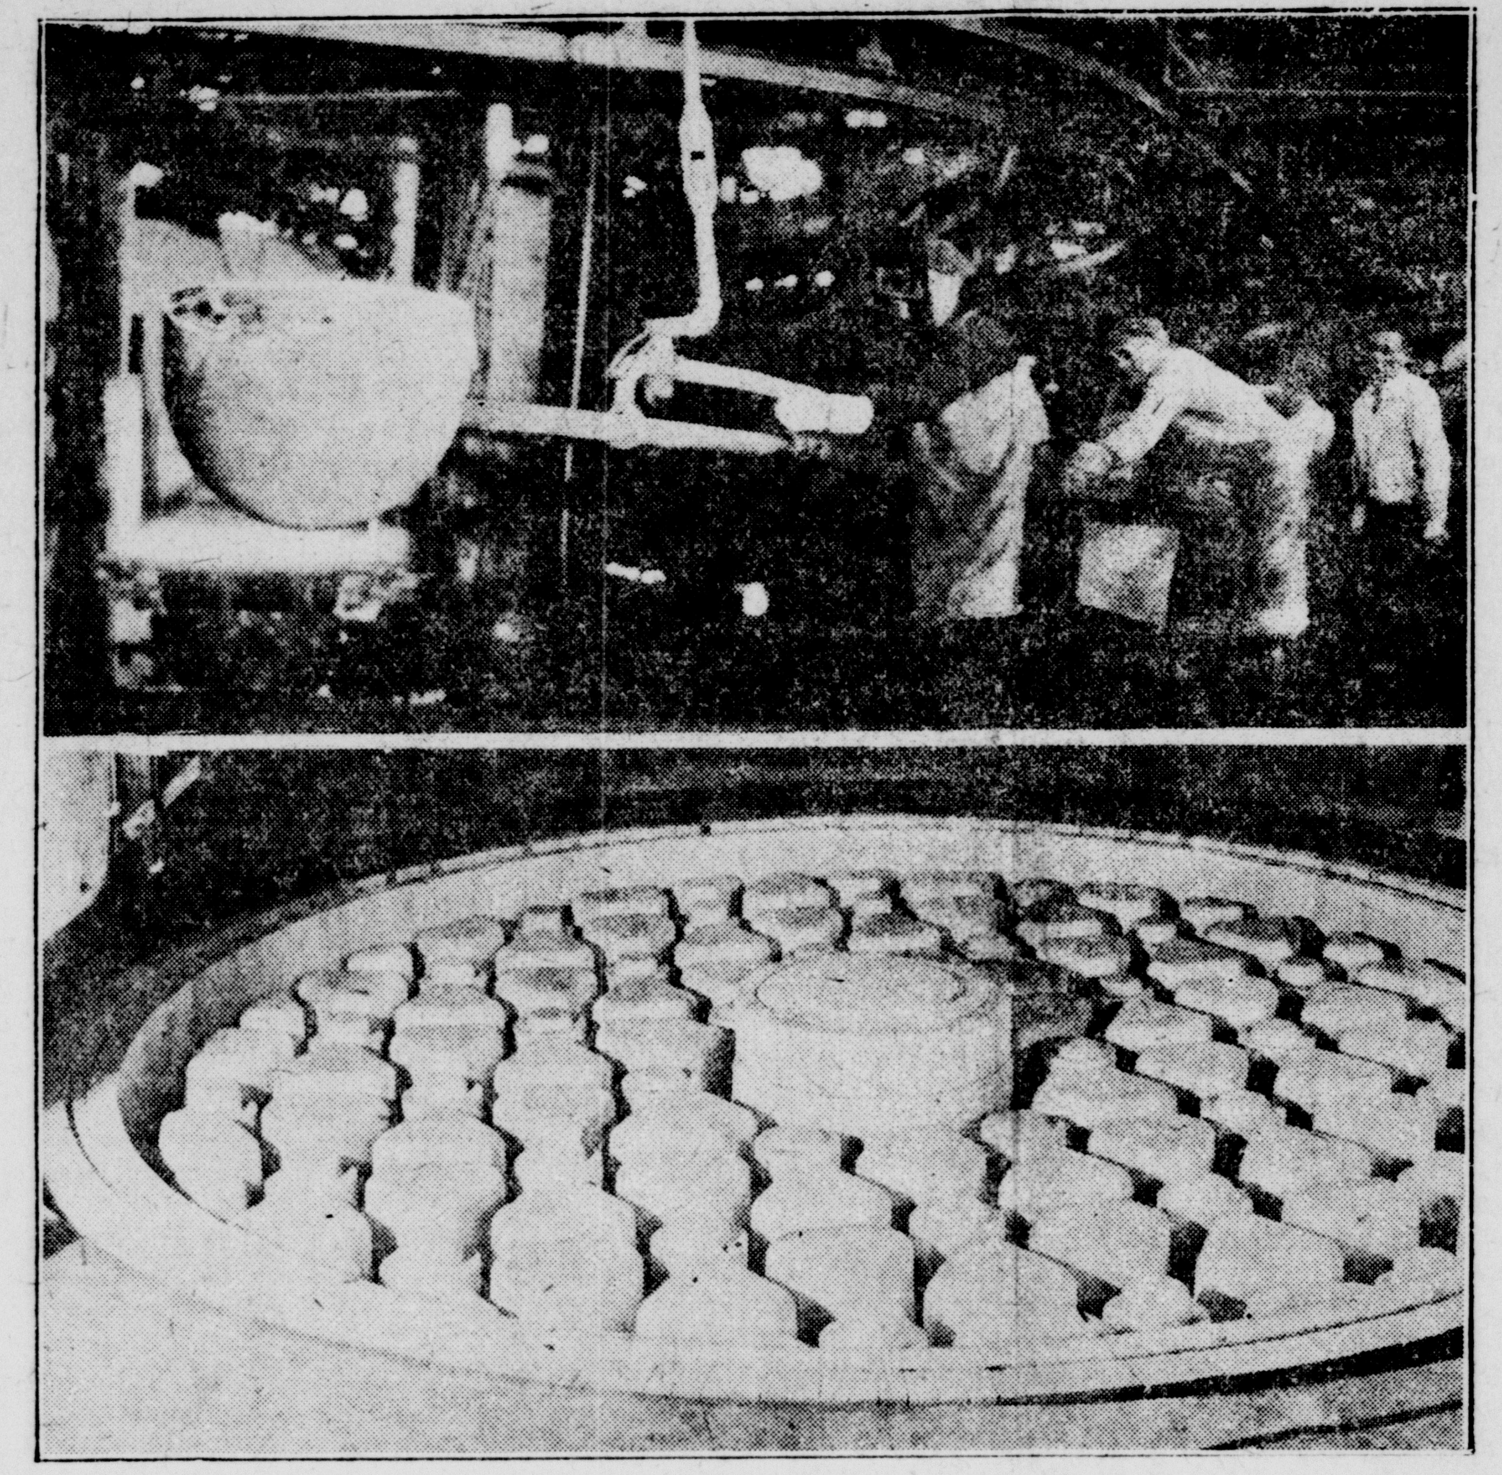
'EYE' POURED FOR WORLD'S LARGEST TELESCOPE



The pouring of 20 tons of molten glass to form the "eye" of the world's largest telescope took place at Corning, N. Y., in what was regarded as an epochal step in scientific achievement. The mold of the "eye," or mirror, of the 200-inch telescope is shown below. Above is a huge iron ladle from which the glass was poured. The crew leader is helmeted against the glare. It took a month to heat the gl and it will take 10 months to cool it. (Associated Press Photos)

Tornado Hits New Orleans

Five Block Area Levelled Today When Storm Strikes — Rescue Work Is Delayed for a Time.

New Orleans, March 26 (AP) — A tornado razed dwellings in several blocks today in the neighborhood of Franklin avenue and Law street. Screams of injured were heard from the wreckage. Live wires and felled poles delayed rescue work.

When policemen and firemen arrived after the wind struck, they followed screams to locate trapped residents. Some families were found wandering about, dazed from fright, in a heavy downpour of rain.

The five block area presented a mass of twisted and torn houses, felled telegraph poles, smashed automobiles and garages. The section consisted mainly of one story frame buildings occupied by approximately 400 persons, mostly of moderate means.

AUTO STRIKE IS AVERTED; LABOR SCORES VICTORY

Eleventh-hour Settlement Is Reached in Automobile Controversy.

LABORS' RIGHT TO ORGANIZE GRANTED

Workers Can Choose Freely Whether To Be Union or Non-Union.

By JAMES COPE

Washington, March 26 (AP) — President Roosevelt looks for a new order in the relations between the working man and his employer as a result of his eleventh-hour settlement of the controversy that threatened a general strike in the automobile industry.

He and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson obtained an agreement from executives and labor leaders last night after weeks of exhausting negotiations. Is established representation for all employes of dealing with management, while extending fresh safeguards to all unions against intimidation or interference.

"It is my hope," said the President, "that this system may develop into a kind of works council in industry in which all groups of employees, whatever may be their choice of organization or form of representation, may participate in joint conference with their employers."

He hailed this as basis for a more comprehensive, adequate and equitable system of relations than ever has existed in a large industry.

Manufacturers and labor leaders were brought into an accord by the president after another day of conferences and

QUARTERLY REPORT ON INCOME IS DUE SOON

Mark Purcell, Local Manager Auto License Department, Receives 1934 Blanks.

PERSONS AGAIN ASKED TO FILE QUARTERLY

Receipt of 900 forms on which Rush county citizens will make out their April state gross income tax returns was announced today by Mark Purcell, manager of the local auto license branch.

Mr. Purcell, who has charge of the distribution of gross income tax forms and information in the territory surrounding Rushville, said the tax forms were available immediately to any persons who wish them. The return may be filed at any time between April 1 and 15, and covers income for the period of January, February and March, 1934.

Mr. Purcell emphasized the fact that although his office is prepared to render all service necessary in conneition with filing the returns, the responsibility for obtaining a blank and making the quarterly report rests with the taxpayer.

All persons or companies that owe more than $10 in gross income tax are required by law to file a quarterly return by April 15 or subject themselves to penalties. Everyone who owes tax, however, regardless of the amount, is urged to pay quarterly, Mr. Purcell said. It was pointed out that in most cases small quarterly payments are easier for the taxpayers to make than one larger annual payment, and also that payments made in April would be vailable for distribution to schools in July. Payments made later in the year could not be sent back to the schools until next January, as the law provides that distributions shall be made twice a year, July 1 and January 1.

Dynamite May Be Necessary in Order To Remove Ice-Locked Bodies on Mountain.

VICTIMS OF AIR CRASH OVER 20 MONTHS AGO

Puente del Inca, Argentina, March 26 (AP) — Dynamite will be necessary to remove the ice-locked bodies of eight men killed in the crash of the air liner San Jose high in the snow-capped Andes 20 months ago.

The body of A. Woods, a steward aboard the Pan-American-Grace plane, which was found last Thursday thus solving one of the greatest mysteries of the air, was brought here yesterday.

Today, company officials announced it would be necessary to send out another expedition equipped with explosives to break the ice and recover the bodies of the eight others killed.

The wreckage is in the slaggy slope of Cerro del Plomo, about four miles south of Puente del Inca.

Reports that the plane had been robbed of gold, were under investigation. Air line officials discounted the reports.

Gary School Head Declares U. S. Is Headed for a Dictator.

CONGRESS SOON TO LOSE POWER

Declares Pending Legislation Is Designed by Soviet Minds.

Gary, Ind., March 26 (AP) —Dr. William A. Wirt declared that if certain pending legislation is passed, the next congress will be, in effect, little more than a figurehead.

The founder and head of Gary's "model school system," said last night that "I believe the country ought to be made aware that if present legislation in congress is enacted, if measures we have been led to believe were temporarily become permanent, we will have lost much of our American liberty.

"During the next two months legislation will probably be passed which will make all elections to congress unimportant. It will not matter whom the people elect Our next congress will not be able to do much."

Earlier in the day Dr. Wirt asked investigation by a special congressional committee of his charges that certain members of the so called "brain trust" plotted revolution.

"When, in my estimation, the welfare of the country demands that the names of my informants be made public," he said, "I shall declare them."

He had attributed to one of the president's advisers the statement that :"we can keep Mr. Roosevelt there until we are ready to supplant him with a Stalin."

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baseball men generally know Bob Quinn, the new general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, as a shrewd judge of playing talent and an experienced business executive, but Bob's biggest youthful ambition was thwarted when a sore arm prevented him from making the big league grade as a catcher.

He was playing with the Norfolk team at the time, having worked his way up steadily from the sandlots around Columbus, Ohio., where he had divided his early days between the diamond and a grocery store and entered professional baseball only after bringing considerable persuasion to bear upon his mother. The Boston Nationals had decided to give Quinn his big chance when a bad arm developed and confined the rest of his playing career to the minor leagues.

All this happened around the turn of the century but it did not halt Quinn's baseball progress. He had a club in the old Inter-State league, representing Columbus, at the time that Ed Barrow, now business manager of the Yankees, was breaking in Hans Wagner as a rookie. Later Quinn directed the Columbus American association team for years, then went with the St. Louis Browns as business manager and in 1924 headed a syndicate that bought the Red Sox, becoming president of the club.

Gowdy As a Flagboy!

Hank Gowdy was one of the stars Quinn sent to the majors and thereby hangs one of Bob's most interesting stories.

"As a kid, Gowdy and one of his boy friends used to hang around the Columbus park," Quinn recalls. "They were persistently underfoot and finally when Hank asked me if there wasn't something he could do I asked him, more in jest than in earnest, how he would like to sweep the grandstand.

"He not only accepted the job but agreed to come in at 4 o'clock in the morning to do it. He also hauled up the flags before the game. One day, as I went out, just before the game, I noticed the flags were not up. There was no sign of Gowdy. I was a little annoyed by that but the next day, the same thing happened and in addition we found the pennant banner torn on the ground at the foot of the pole. Still no sign of Gowdy. The next day when he appeared I was so mad I chased him right out of the office.

"Finally he came back and explained. It seemed he had been playing ball on the first day the flag failed to go up on time and forgotten what time it was. The next day, in trying to get the championship flag up, he had pulled too hard and a piece of wire had cut clear through. Thoroughly scared, he ran right out of the park without waiting for his balling out.

"It wasn't long afterward that young Gowdy was working out with the team and showing signs of becoming a real ball-player. He broke in, however, as first baseman. John McGraw converted him into a catcher and later, with the Boston Braves, he was the hero of George Stallings' 1914 miracle team."

Stallings Called the Turn.

"Speaking of 1914, after which we gave Gowdy a wonderful home-coming celebration in Columbus, I always recall a remark Stallings made to me the day before the start of the world series between the Braves and the Philadelphia Athletics," continued Quinn.

"George turned to me and said: 'Bob, they tell me old Connie Mack has been saving that Indian, Bender, for eight days to fire at us in the opening game. If we beat him tomorrow, we will win four straight. And every man on our club feels just as confident as I do.'"

As most everyone knows, the Braves fulfilled Stallings' prediction by beating Bender and proceeded to astound the baseball world and the Athletics by running out the series in four games.

TENDER-HEARTED GEHRIG DOESN'T FISH 'FOR KEEPS'

Long Key, Fla. (AP) — If Lou Gehrig wasn't so tender-hearted, he might make a good living by fishing.

But he probably would starve — for he turns everything loose, big ones and small ones alike.

The big first sacker of the New York Yankees and his wife caught about everything local waters had to offer during their sojourn, but the only specimen they kept was a seven-foot sailfish.

They are idealists when it comes to angling, believing the immediate liberation of fish should be in the creed of all sportsmen.

Gehrig landed the 50-pound sailfish, his first catch of that sort, in 25 minutes. And he found therein a thrill that even home runs can't surpass.

Aside from that, he and his wife caught numerous large tarpons, amberjacks, kingfish, dolphins and one nine-foot shark.

TOURING FINNS DISCOVER NEW HIGH JUMP PRODIGY

The Finnish athletes barnstorming in South America included Volmari Iso Hollo, winner of the steeplechase and second in the 10,000 meters at Los Angeles, but Kotkas outshone both Iso Hollo and Bengt Sjoestedt, the class of Finnish hurdlers.

Fourth member of the Finnish tourists was Martti Alorotu, a husky young javelin thrower and decathlon prospect.

CUBS DEPEND ON KLEIN AND GANG OF NEW PLAYERS

New Acquisitions May Give Chicago Team Enough Impetus to Reach First Place in National League.

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Los Angeles, March 26 (AP)— Chicago's Cubs are going to gamble on Chuck Klein, National League batting champion of 1933, and a bunch of promising rookies for the added impetus they believe will carry them to the top in the 1934 pennant race.

Determined youth has been injected into the club in every department and Manager Charles Grimm feels confident their presence has improved the club both defensively and offensively.

"In my years of baseball experience," said the genial Mr. Grimm, "I have never seen a pitcher with a finer change of pace." He was speaking of Dick Ward, who won 25 games to lead the Pacific Coast League last year. And he rates Bill Lee, another right hander from the American association and Roy Joiner, of the west coast, almost as high.

He is sure this trio, along with last season's staff, Lon Warneke, Bud Tinning, Guy Bush, Charley Root and Pat Malone, will be able to stand off the opposition while Klein and his mates lead a heavy hitting assault.

Grimm, without hesitation, picks Klein, who hit. 368 with the Phillies last year, as the most valuable player in the league. His only worry in the outfield seems to be that of picking the most powerful trio but of the five outfielders he has at his call.

Besides Klein, there is young George Stainback, Los Angeles youth who cost the Cubs $70,000, and three veterans of last season, Kiki Cuyler, Riggs Stephenson and Floyd Herman.

The Cub infield also has young blood at its disposal. The starting quartet probably will be Woody English at third, Bill Jurges, short, Bill Herman, second and Grimm at first. Grimm likes young Augie Galan, another former coast leaguer, and probably will keep him for utility work along with either Stanley Hack or Dolph Camilli.

Charles (Gabby) Hartnett, temporarily out because of a broken finger, will again be the mainstay of the catching staff with Henry Tate and Ernest Phelps the supporting cast.

Grimm does not feel that he is taking too much of a gamble on the array of youngsters in camp. He took the smallest team to Santa Catalina Island in years for spring training in order that more time could be spent on the youngsters.

SPANISH YOUTHS TAKE UP SKIING; FORM MANY CLUBS

Madrid (AP) — Skiing has become one of the favorite winter sports of Spanish youths, this year reaching a new high in popularity.

The proximity of the Guadarrama mountains, the contour of whose snowy slopes makes for fine skiing, makes indulgence in this winter sport most convenient, and a number of ski clubs have been organized.

Several Scandinavian professionals have found a lucrative field in ski instruction here and bus companies are piling up a neat profit in week-end chartered trips for the scores of ski enthusiasts.

New Wilmington, Pa. (AP) — Wesley Bennett of Akron, O., center on the Westminster college basketball team, maintained an average of 14.36 points per game through 25 games of a 26-game schedule — of which his team won 22 — to lead the country's collegiate net snipers. His total was 359.

Magicians OF THE World

By
Frazier Thomas

Frederick Eugene Powell

To begin a series of articles of this sort, one must turn back the pages of historical magic and begin with the magician most popular at the end of the 19th century. Consequently we begin with the "dean of American magicians, Frederick Eugene Powell. This white haired old gentleman occupied the chair of mathematics at the Pennsylvania Military Academy, but was told by his physician that the close life of a professor was destroying his health. Powell immediately went on the stage as a magician.

He toured the world for more than fifty years with his show of magic and illusions. Now he has retired. A few years ago the Society of American Magicians staged a benefit performance for him in the Heckschet theatre in New York. It was a gala show, attended by more than a thousand magicians with their families and friends. The applause became an uproar when Powell took the stage.

For three hours he offered an old fashioned program of sleight-of-hand, combined with apparatus and stage illusions. Powell stepped in front of the curtains in top hat, cape, and cane, and began his introductory speech while removing his gloves. Suddenly he tossed the gloves into the air, immediately two white doves flew over the heads of the audience—the performance had begun.

Frederick Eugene Powell is a link with the past that has gone forever, but there have been his performers to take place on the legitimate stage and to these performers are the following articles devoted.

LIPTON'S SHAMROCK V AGAIN IN NEW HANDS

London (AP) — Shamrock V, the yacht in which the late Sir Thomas Lipton made his last unsuccessful quest for the America's cup, has changed hands again.

T. O. M. Sopwith, who is challenging for the famous trophy with a new vessel, Endeavor, has sold her to C. R. Fairey, like Sopwith, a British aircraft manufacturer.

Shamrock V, which made a good showing in British waters under Sir Thomas' colors in 1930 and 1931 and for Sopwith in 1932, had an undistinguished career last year mainly because of the appearance of W. L. Stephenson's Velsheda.

Wild Ducks in Sanctuary Tame as Barnyard Fowl

Lost Lake, Fla. (AP) — Whatever it is that makes wild ducks wild is missing from Lost Lake.

The mallards, the redheads and other species that are supposed to regard man as their natural enemy are particularly fond of F. J. Remoldi.

Whenever he puts out from shore in his boat they flock around him like barnyard pigeons and even light on his shoulder. And more often than not, they follow him ashore and waddle around as though domesticated.

The lake is a private sanctuary in which wild life is protected from hunters.

NEW MODEL MAN TO EMERGE FROM FASCIST TRAINING

Milan, Italy (AP)—The fascist regime is forging a new type of man, described as the possessor of "virile humility."

He will be an individualist, says a blackshirt forecast of the future generations, only in so far as individual characteristics benefit society in general.

The "negative" attributes of individualism that he will know nothing of are listed as: venality, vanity, desire for luxury and rebellion against fundamental morals.

His "virile humility" will be expressed in a profound respect for the state and unquestioning obedience to rules that enhance the welfare of the people.

An article published in Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, says the new man will be a welcome relief from the types produced by the French and Russian revolutions.

Th French revolution, it declares, gave the world a man marked by "exaggerated egoism," while the soviet produced a "single cell type lacking in physiognomy, form, energy or will."

DRESSEN SEES NO-PASS RULE KITING SCORES

Houston, Tex. (AP)—The Southern association's new rule to curb the intentional pass may prove an aid to the box offices, but Charlie Dressen, former major league infielder, now managing the Nashville club, is far from sold on it.

Dressen believes baseball fans like to see a close, low-score game as well as or better than a slugging bee, and he fears the new rule will materially reduce the 1-0 and 2-1 contests.

"Take, for instance, a game in Nashville, where there is a short right field fence," Dressen says. "The visitors get runners on first and third with a good left-handed hitter up who has the range of that fence. In a close game our hurler would have to pitch to him to prevent a score. The slugger probably will knock one out of the park and the ball game will be over."

Dressen had plenty of time to think about the radical change during the approximately two months that he was ill of typhoid fever in a hospital here.

Under the rule, after two men are out, all runners advance on an intentional base on balls or hit batsman even if there is a base open. In some instances runners advance two bases. The pass or hit batsman is presumed to be intentional unless the pitcher throws one strike.

Dressen also fears the rule will increase the tendency of batters to step in front of a pitch. If the batsman fools the umpire and makes it appear he could not dodge the throw, the action would result in a score for his team.

ceeds ordered distributed as per decree.

Upon sale being made and confirmed, all liens held by parties were ordered transferred to funds, amounts and priorities fixed by decree. Chauncey W. Duncan and Robert McKay were appointed commissioners to make sale and bond was fixed at $5,000.

The defendant filed a motion to dissolve restraining order and also asked for a special judge in the case of Harry Armstrong et al., against Ed Tilley, a complaint for ejectment. The court granted the request for a special judge and appointed the names of Judges VanDuyn of Greenfield, Craig of Greensburg and Johnston of Connersville as a list from which to strike.

With trial set for Monday, the defendant filed motions for a change of venue from the county Saturday in two cases against Elmer C. Addison. The Commercial Investment Trust company is plaintiff in one suit on contract for $1,200 and the Valerius company is plaintiff in an action seeking $650 on notes.

The defendant filed a motion for a new trial in the case of Aurelia M. Tarplee against William E. Tarplee, executor of the James H. Tarplee estate, a claim for $360. A jury recently awarded the plaintiff $310 on this claim.

In the divorce case of Martha Ann Coers against Walter R. Coers, the plaintiff dismissed her motion to have the defendant show cause.

The plaintiff dismissed the case of David E. Carmony against Brutus Coleman et al., on note for $425.

Nourmahal Wednesday morning in Jacksonville and head for the fishing grounds in the warm waters to the south.

He will be back in Washington by the end of next week, thus giving opportunity for action on any legislation which may be passed by congress before the ten day constitutional time limit elapses.

There continues to be a belief in some quarters that the president intends to veto the increases in veterans allowances voted by the house should these be agreed upon. If the changes made first by the senate win out, a veto is certain. A decision between the two branches was sought today.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred yesterday with Joseph B. Eastman, railroad coordinator, on the rail wage argument. There was no indication that he had changed his position for a six months' extension of the existing ten per cent wage reduction.

The trip this time aboard the Nourmahal is almost identical with the one he made a year ago on the same yacht. He probably will end his water journey at Miami where contact headquarters will be established by a secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, during his cruise ernment "when in my estimation the welfare of the country demands that the names be made public."

A destroyer, the Ellis, under command of Captain White, will trail the Nourmahal as a convoy.

Wirt, head of the Gary, Ind., schools, in a letter read to the house interstate commerce committee last week, said attempts to overthrow the present government were being made within the Roosevelt administration.

"Last December," he says in the Post, "about 100 intellectual radicals publicly threatened President Roosevelt with their group resignations unless he accepted their viewpoint as his."

Wirt also asserted in the paper that much of the administration's emergency legislation meant loss of fundamental liberty to the American people. Under it, he said, the government can be "judge, jury and prosecutor."

The demand to know the names of his informants, he characterized as "the usual move to distract attention from the real issues."

THE BOY AND THE GIRL PROBLEM

Have parents been concentrating on the so-called boy problem to the exclusion of the girl?

Once upon a time everyone accepted as fact that the boy was a problem, until someone suggested that he was not a problem, but an opportunity — a chance to improve the manhood of the next generation.

Countless organizations far and near have been devoting their best efforts to develop better boys, but there are still bad boys, and always will be.

And now people are beginning to recognize that there is as much a girl problem as there ever was a boy problem.

Prejudiced minds have been accustomed to condemning boys without trial, to deciding in advance that when any evil mischief was done, some boy was to blame. In sum, all boys were judged with the worst as a standard.

Very much the same thing has brought about the present-day idea that girls, too, offer a problem.

Some girls have done indiscreet things that, measured by the social standards of another day, appear to be bad.

Evil-minded persons have repeated chance stories heard about girls and hipocritical gossipers have villainously enlarged upon them. This is not to say there are no bad girls.

But the daughters of today are no worse than their mothers were. They are the product of modern civilization. They will have to be accepted as they are, but they are not half as bad as they are pictured.

As long as human nature continues to run true to form, there will be bad girls and bad boys, but there is no doubt that improvement, which is controlled to some extent by parents, will reduce the number.

However, the elements of birth, and inherited instincts still influence lives, and they are beyond control of society, because the law has not yet restricted the right to give birth to children.

CUBA NOT YET OUT OF TROUBLE

Attention has been diverted from Cuba by other interests during the past few weeks but those who are of the opinion that Cuba is convalescing from the unrest and disorder that has prevailed for many months, are mistaken.

The situation has been greatly altered for the country due to the fact that present government headed by President Carlos Mendieta has been recognized by the United States and many other leading countries, and by the many helpful steps that his country has taken to help the economic welfare of the island. But strikes and political unrest now threaten to throw the country into further chaos. Troops patrol the streets and industry is at a virtual standstill.

Communistic agitation is responsible for much of the trouble that abounds. The government is trying every means to bring about order and to return the country to normal conditions. Whether or not it will be successful remains to be seen, but it is hoped that it will be able to do so without declaring a state of war which is now threatened.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

CHAPTER 37
EXPLORATION

Frank thought of reconnoitering their position but decided against it. It would leave Janice unprotected and at night he would discover but little of value.

Unprotected! He smiled grimly. His joints ached, the wound in his back pained him. He was comparatively weaponless. There was not much protection he would be able to offer Janice.

His eyelids dropped. He arose and began to walk about the fire But nis limbs were leaden. Weariness foecet him to lie upon the ground. His head sank lower. Sleep fell upon him with the speed of a trapping hawk.

A thudding upon the ground woke him. He lay a moment adjusting his mind to his surroundings. Overhead, in the turquoise sky of dawn, a vulture hovered. It drifted beyond his sight. Through the arched fronds of leaning palm trees he saw the jungle-clad lip of a low cliff. Its face arched back and under.

Beneath it was a low mound of debris, topped with shrubbery, Instantly he knew that it was upon this mound that Janice and he had fallen. This was verified as he noted the break in the vegetation at the cliff's edge where the old Maya road had abruptly terminated in space.

The thudding recommenced—a vibration upon the ground that was transmitted to his car.

Swiftly he arose to his feet, and glanced about him. The fire was dull embers in white ashes. Janice was not in sight. He parted his lips to call when he caught sight of her within the palm grove. With the machete she was pounding at an object upon a rock.

As he approached she looked up with a smile.

"Breakfast, maybe," she told him. "These cocoanuts are like leather. And not at all like the kind we have at home."

Frank chuckled. "The greatest wonder," he informed her, "is that you recognized them for cocoanuts. Here, let me have the knife. The one you're working on is rather old. I'll get some good ones."

He laughed at her crestfallen face. Strapping the machete to his waist he approached one of the smaller trees.

"I haven't 'shinned' since I was a kid but. . .watch me."

He made the ascent. Reaching the lower leaves, he hacked at a cluster of green nuts. He called to Janice to watch out.

The nuts thudded to the ground. He slid down.

Chopping at the green fiber, soon he had two of the nuts open at the top. He passed one to Janice.

"Here's how," he grinned. "Drink all you can, and scoop out the pulp with your fingers. Fingers were made before spoons, you know."

"But not mine," she answered with a little mock grimace.

It was little enough for breakfast, but it must serve. They tossed away the emptied husks and stood looking at each other. She seemed to sense the trouble in his eyes. Impulsively she put forward her hand and rested it upon his sleeve.

"Never mind," she said. "We'll get out somehow."

"Of course," he answered with forced cheerfulness. But the memory of Green's and Juan's sacrifice for them lay like a pall upon him. In that instant he took oath with himself that their heroic act would not have been in vain. He would, somehow, get Janice out of this.

"Let's take a look around," he suggested. "We can't get back the way we came, so let's continue on in the direction of the broken road. I think I saw another cliff a few hundred yards across this little valley.

"Perhaps we can climb up to there and continue on the road. Considering the direction of the sun, the road runs roughly east and west. Might be able to follow it to the sea."

He recovered his coat from the side of the fire and they began to work their way toward the spot where another cliff, similar to the one they had fallen over, faced them.

Halfway to it the ground dipped sharply into a swiftly running stream. The stream was not wide, but it was very deep. They followed it northward a few hundred yards until they discovered that the flow came out from a huge cavern under the northern cliff.

They stopped, nonplussed. Nowhere had they discovered a way of gaining the level of the jungle above them.

They retraced their steps until they came to the spot where they had camped the night before. The sun had swung up into the sky. Their little valley was becoming as humid as a hot house. Wraithes of vapor, sucked upward from the damp ground, fogged the rank vegetation. Frank glanced anxiously at the girl by his side.

"Feel like resting, Janice?"

She shook her head. "I'm not tired. Just a little hungry."

They picked their way southward. Finally they reached the lower end of the stream. As it had at the other end of the little valley here again the current swirled into the maw of cavern under the face of that queerly concave cliff. Frank said thoughtfully.

"And no way to get out of here in this direction." He glanced backward up the stream. The current flowed around a small promontory two hundred yards distant. The trunk of a palm lay across the stream at that point.

Frank pointed to it. "We've just about been around the valley—except for that lower side there that's hidden by the littte hill. Let's cross at that fallen palm and ake a look. If we're blocked there. . ."

Janice met his glance fearlessly. "If we're blocked there," she prompted, "then what?"

Frank shrugged. "Oh, we'll get out," he replied with a heartiness he did not feel.

They made their way to the palm log. Frank straddled the natural bridge and hitched himself across. The log gave somewhat under his weight. He reached the farther bank. He called to Janice to follow.

But the girl was standing and staring intently at the trunk of the fallen palm.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

Washington — One argument frequently raised on the floor of the house prior to passage of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill was that this legislation would take away the world market for cotton from the south and give it to foreign competitors.

The effect of the so-called Stephenson plan upon the rubber producers of the British empire was cited as what might happen to this country.

"Economic destruction greater than that experienced during the reconstruction period following the Civil war is about to be heaped on the southland," cried a representative from the midwest.

Cotton experts of the AAA and the department of agriculture are keeping close watch on whether foreign cotton producers change their production plans in response to the American policy. Already Egypt has been subjected to a study. A similar investigation now is under way in Brazil.

Situation May Change

Thus far, it is generally agreed that this country's position in the world's cotton trade is not in danger. The acreage reduction program is being urged because stocks of American cotton, to a greater extent than stocks in foreign countries, are enormously in excess of demand

American acreage reduction last year (principally by ploughing under) did improve the supply situation materially. The carry-over of American cotton at the close of the season, however, still was above normal.

Cotton economists say that as long as the United States has heavy cotton stocks to sell abroad, it has full justification for a systematic effort to bring supply and demand into balance. At the same time they recognize that a program based on the existence of a surplus may not suit the situation that will exist after the surplus disappears or is materially decreased.

They say it is possible, therefore, that with the transition from the emergency to a long-time program a new policy, adjusted to the necessity of retaining predominance in the world's cotton trade, will be forthcoming.

For An Emergency

It has been demonstrated conclusively, moreover, that no area in the world is so well adapted to cotton production as the southern states. Foreign countries encounter the difficulties of climate, soil, labor or transportation.

The Bankhead measure admittedly is emergency legislation. Its life would be for two years, but could be extended a third year by presidential proclamation.

Production in the second and third years would be fixed by the secretary of agriculture, provided two-thirds of the growers approved continuation of the law.

The President has the authority to suspend it at any time.

AMUSEMENTS

NOW PLAYING

PRINCESS — Joe E. Brown as the knave of the navy in "Son of A Sailor," with Jean Muir, Thelma Todd and Frank McHugh.

The newest Joe E. Brown picture opened here yesterday at the Princess theatre, and if all of the movie ad men's ingeniously coined superlatives to infer hilarious comedy were laid end to end, they could't begin to reach around the bubbling mass of howling, mirth-quaking laugh material crowded into that funniest of all feature comedies which we have seen to date, namely "Son of a Sailor."

First National certainly has "done right by our Joe" and handed him the fattest part of his career. It must have taken a small army of gag-men to think up all of the big laugh situations that crowd upon each other so fast, that one has no time to recover from each preceding big howl, before another pops up to floor us.

Yes, there is a well knitted story, sane and logical enough to allow for all the utterly absurd, illogical and insane antics of Joe E. Brown as 'Handsome' Callahan. Joe is a sailor in the Navy, a member of the airplane carrier U. S. S. Saratoga crew. To hear him tell it, he hobnobs with the elite, notables, admirals and the like during his spare time. And the funny part of it is that he does, in the end, though most unwillingly. But that is not the important part of it. Joe prevaricates himself in and out of more trouble than a whole regiment of Ananiases.

He can lick any man in the world and has to prove it. His hosts of lady admirers—why the line simply forms on the right. And what a lineup of rights he encounters before he gets even a tumble from a single female.

There may be only seven original jokes on which to base any comedy, but we failed to recognize any of the familiar concoctions these are supposed to bring about. Hilarious situations, new to the screen at least, kept yesterday's audience in a constant roar of laughter.

(Read John XVII:6-19)

"Thou Gavest Them Me"

Jesus asks only two things for cover everything essential. "Keep the twelve, but these two things them from the Evil One." "Sanctify thm in the truth." The world is corrupt. Its very atmosphere is tainted. The whole world lies in the evil one. But the disciples of Jesus are not to run away from the world. They are to plunge into its life and redeem it. They are to grapple with its enemies and conquer them. They are to wrestle with its problems and solve them. They must keep themselves unspotted from the world. Christians must be morally clean. This is first and last. Without holiness no man can see the Lord or work for Him successfully. But it is not enough to be kept from evil. They must be sanctified in the truth. They must have the word of God in themselves. They must be dedicated to the true and the good. iness. "For their sakes I sanctify They must be in league with holmyself that they themselves also may be sanctified in truth."

Prayer: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, keep us, we implore Thee, from the corruption of the world. We know that evil lurks on every side, and that our home is in a perverse and adulterous generation. Save us. O Lord, and throw round us the protection of Thy love. Amen.

New York, March 26 (AP)—The stock market today staged only a brief celebration of the settlement of the automobile labor controversy. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,150,000 shares.

New York, March 26 (AP)—In the most active trading in several weeks, the stock market moved higher in the early dealings today led by an active demand for motor shares. Rails and other divisions followed closely.

With one of the major labor problems settled, the financial district began to pay more attention to business and industrial news.

Much interest was shown in the monthly bulletin of the federal reserve board which reported further substantial gains in industrial output since the first of the year. Activity at the automobile factories, it was said, displayed a rapid growth in January and February and considerable improvement was registered by the steel industry.

While commodities recently have not exhibited much progress, the reserve board stated that the general level of wholesale commodity prices at the end of February was 23 per cent above the low point of a year ago and 5 per cent above the summer of last year.

The magazine "Steel" was impressed with the ability of the steel industry to hold up so well in the face of the various strike situations. The operating rate for the past week was placed at 49 per cent of capacity, a decline of 1 point. Railroad orders were said to be increasing and structural requirements gained moderately under seasonal influences. No important cancellations were issued by automobile manufacturers.

SENATE APPROVES BILL

Veteran's Bill as Passed by House Is Concurred in With Certain Amendment.

Washington, March 26 (AP)—The senate today concurred in the less liberal veterans benefits voted by the house but added a clarifying amendment which requires house approval before the controverted independent offices bill may be sent to the White House.

Previously, the senate had added $188,000,000 in veterans benefits to the measure, while the house had voted only $83,000,000. The senate now agrees to the lower figure.

SOURCE OF INSULL INCOME IS PUZZLE

Chicago, March 25 (AP) — The source of Samuel Insull's revenue is a major mystery to federal operatives.

Chicagoans recalled the remark Insull made when, reputedly a poor man, he left Chicago and his crumbling utility empire behind.

"I am" he said, "no longer newspaper copy."

He was reported to have no income other than $21,000 in pensions voted him by four of his former companies—which were cancelled January 1.

Despite this, he financed litigation in Greece for almost two years, finally chartering a ship which is rumored to have cost $10,000.

One report said a Chicagoan visited Insull in Athens to deliver him $200,000. Federal investigators are checking it, but are unable to determine if the money was paid or whence it came.

When Insull and his wife lived modestly in two rooms of a Paris hotel that once rented a whole floor to the utility czar, he was visited by an official of the People's Gas Light and Coke company. But that official scoffed at reports that he carried a purse from Chicago friends of the aged exile.

A few weeks later his son, Samuel Insull Jr., visited France. He, too, denied that he took a large sum to his father.

Other reports declared that Insull's wife had pawned most of her jewelry, said to be valued at nearly $1,000,000; that he received cash shipments regularly from safety deposit boxes; that English friends raised a $40,000 purse.

Drive Against Billboards Calls for French Boycott

Paris (AP)—A campaign against "offensive, sacrilegious and ugly" outdoor advertising has been launched by the French Touring club.

Failing persuasion, a boycott of the merchandise thus advertised will be tried as a weapon in this war against the "desecration of the French countryside," the clu announces.

A "chamber of horrors" has been formed. It consitss of photographs of all the ancient structures and beauty spots made hideous by bill boards.

Among these examples are the Arch of Triumph at Avignon, a picturesque windmill at Muzillas, Brittany; a quaint Pyrenean homestead near Gavarnie and an ancient bridge at Sospel.

Clark-Arbuckle

A quiet and simple wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock at the Milroy United Presbyterian parsonage when Miss Margaret Arbuckle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Arbuckle of Milroy, became the bride of Leroy Clark, son of Arthur Clark of Watseka, Illinois.

The Rev. W. Guy Hamilton, pastor, read the single ring ceremony in the presence of Miss Viola Arbuckle, Smith Vanosdol and Homer Arbuckle of Milroy.

Mrs. Clark was attractively attired in grey with accessories of blue. She attended the Milroy high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark left Sunday evening for Watseka where they will reside, Mr. Clark being employed there.

SINGER OF PSALMS TO GIVE PROGRAM HERE

A musical program by Jesse Phillips-Robertson, singer of Psalms, will be presented here next Monday night at 8 o'clock at the United Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the 2-H Sunday School class, it was announced today by Dr. A. W. Jamieson, teacher of the class.

An unusual feature of Mr. Robertson's programs is his long-necked lute, on which he accompanies his own singing. The instrument is a faithful copy of the lute of David's time, modified only so that the player can adapt it to modern harmonies.

But the psalms grip deeper than mere musical or poetic interest. They are more than a national expression. They record the spiritual experiences and emotions of a people whose history is one of the marvels of all time. Antedating the Pharoah of the Exodus, down the centuries, this people has struggled and suffered, but retained its integrity. It is a long, long trail from Ismael and Isaac to the Wailing Wall, yet the way is illuminated by these imperishable poems, that portray the aspirations and spiritual yearnings of the Jewish race.

THOMAS M. BRYSON DIES

Mrs. Edgar Thomas of Milroy has received word of the death of her foster brother, Thomas Miller Bryson, formerly of Rush county, which occurred Friday morning at his home in St. Joe, Missouri. Mr. Bryson, who was foreman of the machine department in the Inso company there was injured while working, but details were lacking.

Mr. Bryson was reared in the Richland community where he is well known. He had visited Mrs. Thomas and friends during the last Christmas holidays. He was 61 years old at the time of death. Mr. Bryson left Richland about thirty years ago, going to Topeka, Kansas, and later settling in St. Joe.

He is survived by the widow, one daughter, one sister and two grandsons. Funeral services will probably be held there.

HUGE TELESCOPE IS BEING MADE FOR SCIENTISTS

of affixing a mirror surface. These last stages will require three years. Completed, the telescope will represent an investment of $6,000,000 furnished by the International Education board.

The job of making the mirror cost approximately $1,000,000. A large share of the grant was spent trying to make an expansion proof glass of quartz. That failed. The Corning company, after tedious research and experimentation, turned out a special glass with expansion of less than one fourth that of window glass.

The pouring of the glass, an all day task, was witnessed by almost 10,000 persons, many of whom motored here from distant points. Included were almost 100 scientists and engineers of renown.

Three tiers of galleries restrained the crowd from approaching the roaring furnace and mold. The spectators were admitted in groups of 100 and were permitted to see the transfer of one ladle of glass from furnace to mold. The molten mass was moved in huge ladles which were suspended from overhead tracks and were propelled by workmen pushing on 20 foot handles attached to the ladles.

One hundred ladlefuls were dipped out of the tank furnace and poured into the mold. Each ladle carried 750 pounds of composition but only 400 pounds fell in the mold. The liquid cooled so quickly in its short 40 foot journey that 350 pounds of each load adhered to the dipper.

The occasion marked a holiday for Corning. Long queues of ticket holders stretched away from the gates to the plant while groups, not possessing tickets, gathered along the fences unable to obtain even a peek at the performance.

ended a drawn out controversy which had threatened a strike involving 250,000 men in the motor plants and menacing the administration's recovery program.

Mr. Roosevelt said the agreement stipulated that employes shall have the right to choose their own representatives to bargain with employers and there should be no discrimination "in any way against any employe on the ground of his union labor affiliations."

This gives the right to the automobile workers to choose freely whether they wish to belong to a company union or to a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

"Employes have the right," said the president, "to organize into a group or groups.

"Discrimination against employes because of their labor affiliations, or for any other unfair or unjust reason is barred."
